

Las Cruces, NM - Harry Teague will spend this weekend continuing his constituent outreach, visiting local festivals and discussing his new agriculture legislation in Hatch and Las Cruces.

On Saturday, Teague will start the weekend at the Hatch Chile Festival and Parade. He will greet constituents and talk with local farmers and chile producers about his latest piece of agricultural legislation. The Specialty Crop Enhancement Act would enhance the competitiveness of New Mexico specialty crops, including New Mexican chile, by bolstering USDA's Specialty Crop Block grant program.

Following the festival, Harry Teague will join the New Mexico State University (NMSU) football team and supporters for their Pre-Season Celebration in Las Cruces, where he will meet guests and wish the Aggies well as they kick off the new football season next week.

On Sunday, Harry Teague will attend the Harvest Wine Festival in Las Cruces where he will meet with constituents and discuss local issues.

All interested media are invited to attend.
